Perspectives: The Library Has More Than Walls

Some libraries have wheels. Some of you, especially my fellow baby boomers, may have fond memories of the bookmobile visiting your neighborhood, bringing the library to you. I know that it was an important part of my early years, resulting in a lifelong love of learning.

Our Westport Library goes even farther. On September 28, 2016, under the able leadership of our treasurer Ned Daniels, FOWL, along with a generous anonymous donor, sponsored a visit from celebrated children's author and performer Bill Harley to the 4th and 5th graders at Westport Elementary School.

At the Library, his books were put on display for our young patrons to borrow and enjoy. This effort, extending far beyond our Library's physical walls, is the latest example of the many ways the Library reaches out to the community in a tangible way.

And farther yet. The Chat in this issue of @ the Library features the Cast-Offs of Westport, whose charitable work benefits a number of organizations in the area. The Westport Food Bank has a permanent space for collection in the Library lobby. Our museum and park passes provide entertainment and education opportunities for individuals and families to explore in Massachusetts. Many community groups use the Library's space and resources for activities that reach out to Westport, the South coast and beyond.

Bookmobiles may have become rare in our mobile, technology-filled world, but today's public libraries provide services and resources that help us connect to each other. We hope to continue to "grow" our Library's vibrancy to reach out beyond its physical walls, to collaborate with businesses and groups in our community, and work to engage people in all the good things that can begin at the Library.

TumbleBooks: Library e-Books for e-Kids!

The Library now has the Tumble Book Library for use by its young patrons. Tumblebooks are fun, free online books for kids. The collection can be accessed online from a computer at the Library, from home through a direct link on the Library web site, or via any reading/mobile device that has an internet connection (for example: Color Nook, Kindle Fire, Ipad and Ipod Touch).

The TumbleBooks collection includes animated, talking picture books with fiction, non-fiction and foreign language titles, chapter books, enhanced novels, ebooks, reading comprehension quizzes, education games, math stories, videos from National Geographic and TumbleTV which consists of pre-set playlists of a sequence of books. The materials are suitable for children in kindergarten through grade six.

These electronic books are a literacy resource that keeps children interested and involved in reading. TumbleBooks are great for children learning to read. The interactive web site keeps them interested in reading and contributes to success in school and helps to instill a love of reading.

A Chat with

The Cast-Offs of Westport

by Lorraine Carey

Thanks for letting me visit you tonight. I'm intrigued by your group's name. All these beautiful handcrafted items are certainly not cast-offs!

It actually is a knitting term. Knitters cast on stitches to begin a piece and they cast off to complete it. We had a laugh about the name at first because it can mean some different things but now we like it.

Tell me about the items you make and where they end up.

The "soothing dolls" are called Daduza; they go to young children at the RI Early Intervention Program. We make fun hats and shawls for the cancer unit and heart pillows for the cardiac unit at Charlton Hospital. Cardiac patients use the heart pillows to support their chests after surgery. Premie (premature baby) items and dolls have been donated to St. Luke's Hospital.

This month we will finish our "giving tree" which will be covered with green mittens and other items for the women's shelter in New Bedford.

How did the Cast-Offs of Westport end up at the Library?

We were at another location initially, but we wanted a meeting place in the early evening that was safe and comfortable with good parking, lighting and rest-rooms—and was free! The Library is perfect for us and the staff has been so welcoming. An exhibit of our work will be in the Helen E. Ellis Case in March 2017 which is very exciting for us.

Do you have a message for our readers?

Yes, new members are always needed and no previous experience is necessary. We will teach anyone who wants to help. Also, we accept yarn donations. Our email is castoffs@outlook.com.

The Cast-Offs of Westport, Sue Costa, Sue Green, Erika Hamer, Sheila Hutchinson, Beverly Mello, Dolores Rodriques and Diane Cambra meet on Thursdays 5-8.

Rosie visits: Practice reading aloud to our canine friend.

Book a ten-minute slot all to yourself, to read to our wonderful therapy dog, Rosie.

Michael's Bookstore

When you visit the Library, check out our new bookstore signage honoring one of our FOWL board members, Michael Habib. Michael served as president of FOWL from 1989-2011 and initiated the paperback carousel in the lobby and the FOWL bookstore in the late 1990s. Along with his work stocking the bookstore, he is our special and rare books guru, devoting many hours, with the forbearance and assistance of his wife Evelyn, to researching and selling books to benefit the Library. Thank you, Michael, for your enduring dedication to FOWL and the Library.

Spotlight

BILL HARLEY

by Ned Daniels

On Wednesday, September 28, 2016 Bill Harley held two assemblies at the Westport Elementary School where he was well received. And also creatively introduced by, first, a group of fifth graders for their assembly and then by a group of fourth graders for their assembly. He said that he had never been introduced that way.

Bill opened each assembly with a song and his guitar. Then he recalled that thirty-three years ago he spoke at the Westport Elementary School, and when he was finished he found out that his wife was in labor with their son. He continued his presentation with slides and comments, punctuated with a wonderful sense of humor. After that he took many well thought out questions from the students. A grand time was had by all.

In case you don't know who he is:

Bill Harley is an author, songwriter, storyteller, performing and recording artist. Recipient of Parents' Choice, ALA and two Grammy® awards, Bill uses song and story to paint a vibrant and hilarious picture of growing up, schooling and family life. In slice of life vignettes that exude warmth, wit and wisdom Harley uses a consummate storyteller's toolbox of tone, voice, delivery, and pace, creating something palpable between himself and his listeners. Awarded the lifetime achievement award from RI Council for the Humanities and an honorary degree from Hamilton College, Bill tours nationwide. His latest work is a book series about fourth grader Charlie Bumpers and is filled with Harley's trademark hilarity and heart. The first book in this series recently won The Beverly Cleary Children's Choice Award and is part of the One School, One Book programming. Bill lives in Seekonk, Massachusetts.

World of Books

Bookmarks come in all shapes and sizes...

Our staff often discusses the sorts of bookmarks that individuals leave in returned books. It appears that, while reading, most of us grab almost anything to mark a page when answering the door or telephone, getting back to work, or closing our books after that last sleep-inducing paragraph.

When these forgotten "bookmarks" seem a little too personal or valuable—meaning that we doubt the patron would wish to leave them behind—we do our best to reunite them with their owners. In some cases, we mail their stamped, addressed envelopes for them. When all else fails, we add the especially nice items (including all those items that were indeed designed to be bookmarks) to our lost-and-found box, so please ask to rummage through there should you be missing your latest utility bill, etc.

If you feel that creative bookmarking may not be your forte, you might consider some of the following bookmark alternatives when marking your place: tissue-box top, nail file, business card, postcard, postage stamp, family photo, wedding announcement, to-do list (even when visiting the Library is one of the errands), gift card, or even a paperback placed within a larger book. While some folks have used payment invoices, medical prescriptions, legal documents, and saving bonds, we do not recommend these items.

Whatever item you choose—including our free, official library-hours bookmark—please keep reading and remember, we are always here to help.
