Report of the Westport Public Library.

The librarians of the Westport Public Library submit the following report:

During the year 1919, 2,320 books have been circulated, 20 new subscribers have borrowed books from the library and 91 new books have been purchased. Besides the $125.00 received from the town, the library has received $25.00, the proceeds of a supper and of an entertainment given for its benefit. Several contributions of magazines have been received during the year and these have furnished much amusement to the juvenile subscribers.

The far-reaching influence for mental uplift which the library exerts in a community is hard to measure, but is definitely felt.

For some time now the librarians have been endeavoring to select children's books which should prove interesting and beneficial to the child. The adult fiction has been selected with the same care and judgment exercised in previous years.

REPORT OF COMMISSIONERS OF PUBLIC AND TOWN LANDINGS.

This Board organized March 15, 1919, with John I. Gifford, chairman and George W. Russell, clerk.

During the year, Mrs. Thomas B. Tripp has kindly presented the town with a piece of land to be used as a landing at the Head of the Let, Horse Neck. This is a gift that the Town should greatly appreciate as it is the only place for landing boats at the Let. We have inserted an article in the 1920 Town Warrant in relation to its acceptance, which we hope will be adopted.

The Treasurer's report will show the receipts and payments during the past year.

We suggest that the citizens vote the appropriations for the several departments as recommended by the Selectmen in their report.

The Committee in reaching its conclusions felt the necessity of first repairing the main thoroughfares where the most people would be accommodated. It also realizes the urgent need of appropriations being made at an early date for the repair or construction of several other roads for which requests were made, but find that the town cannot make such appropriations this year without incurring an excessive tax rate or exceeding the debt limit.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES S. HASKELL, Chairman,
JOHN I. GIFFORD,

COMPARISON OF SCHOOL EXPENSES IN WESTPORT AND IN THE STATE AS A WHOLE.

Statistics.

Westport spends per pupil $53.31 per year.

131 places spend more and 222 spend less than this.

In the State it ranges from $135.41 (Gosnold) to $24.67 (Provincetown).

The average is $51.40.

The tax rate for the support of schools is, in Westport, $8.03 per $1,000.00. 69 places have a higher, and 284 places a lower school tax. The range is from $11.42 (Abington) to $.35 (Peru). The average for the State is $5.45, than which 244 places raise more and 109 raise less.

The valuation per pupil in Westport is $6,192.00.

153 places have a greater valuation and 200 places a less valuation per pupil. The range for this State is from $107,380.00 (Gosnold) to $1,854.00 (Gayhead). The average is $8,294.00.

Explanation.

The amount spent per pupil is the test of whether the school expense is high or low. Whether it should be high or low depends upon local conditions. In general the larger the area of the town per pupil the more the necessary cost per pupil.

The tax rate for school purposes shows the amount of effort being made to maintain good schools.

The valuation per pupil shows the financial ability of a community to support its schools.

Conclusion.

These statistics and comparisons show that Westport, considering the spread-out character of the school population, is not spending more than it should. The cost per pupil is less above the average than the nature of the town is above the average in size for population.

The cost per $1,000.00 in valuation shows that this expenditure calls for a tax levy proportionately much greater than the resulting revenue per pupil. There are nine places with a school tax in excess of $10.00, 27 places with a tax between $9.00 and $10.00, and 33 places whose school tax exceeds Westport's but is less than $9.00. Our school tax is high.

The explanation lies in the relatively small valuation per pupil, $2,102.00 less than the state average and the fact this low valuation per pupil does not bring us State aid because the total valuation of the town is over $2,500,000.00. There are 200 towns with less valuation per pupil but 192 towns are receiving more State aid. In some cases this is more than the town itself raises. Chilmark, for instance, has a school tax of $1.07, thereby raising $27.49 per pupil and the State gives for further aid of $94.73 per pupil. Westport, which requires four times the tax to raise the same amount per pupil, received from the State not $94.00 but $2.20 per pupil. Chilmark illustrates a high expenditure per pupil at a high expense to the State and an exceeding low expense to the Town. Our case illustrates a medium expense per pupil and almost no expense to the State and a high cost to the Town. Westport is too rich to be a poor and too poor to be a wealthy town. To be better off we should have either considerably more or somewhat less valuation.

Report of the School Board.

The School Board submits its Fifth Annual Report as follows:

We feel that the past year has been one of marked improvement in the school system of Westport, that the scholars are being brought up to a higher standard by the efficient work of the superintendent and teachers and hope that they may be, in the future, able to enter the schools of our surrounding cities and towns without being put back in their studies six months or more.

The school committee feel that if the parents of the school children would interest themselves more in school work very much better results would be obtained. We feel sure the superintendent, teachers and committee would be glad to listen to any suggestions in regard to the work of the schools.

The transportation is a very difficult problem which the committee has studied from all its points, with the result that we find it is impossible to make it what we wish it might be owing to the extensive area of the town.

While we have this year overrun our appropriation, everyone knows that at this time, with the advancing cost of labor and supplies, it is impossible to run our schools with the same money as in years gone by. Therefore we ask for a much larger appropriation this year.

A careful consideration of the superintendent's report will call to your attention all additional facts and suggestions.

Respectfully submitted,

FRANK A. POTTER,
CYRUS W. TRIPP,
HORATIO H. CRAWFORD.

Report of the Superintendent of Schools.

To the School Committee:

I have the honor to submit herewith my second report as Superintendent of Schools in Westport.

Everywhere schools are the topic of more or less discussion. Much said shows clearly both lack of information and positive misinformation. For this condition the people at large are in no wise to blame. We cannot know unless we are told, and it is as I see it, the duty of the superintendent to give the needed school information. I shall seek, therefore, in this report, to state the facts upon which, in town meeting, or elsewhere the people can form correct conclusions.

In my last report I mentioned as the two most prominent needs shown in the first six months of my work, the serious lack of text books and the lack of a single plan and program of work for the entire town. While something still remained to be done along each of these lines these conditions are not the outstanding defects that they were last year.

In connection with a definite town program of school work, I have introduced into the schools detailed outlines of the grade work of New York City. The reasons for this are as follows:

If there is to be efficient work, we must have definite detail standards. These outlines are preeminently definite and detailed.

Our standards should be admittedly high. These outlines were worked out by members of the largest and highest-paid teaching force in the country, are used with satisfaction all over the country, prepare for the hardest tests given—those of the State of New York—and have produced schoolwork of superior excellence wherever used.

The detailed nature of this material, showing exactly the work of each week for each grade, settles all questions of standing and progress. These outlines are in the hands of the scholars. Not only the teacher, but every child knows, and parents, if they will observe the work of their children, may know, his exact standing. A child doing in arithmetic the work of the seventh week in the 6B outline, for example, knows that his actual standing is that of the seventh week of the sixth grade, no matter what he has been considered. If he cannot do a week's work in a week's time, he knows that he is falling behind and if he can do no more than the set amount, he knows that he is making more than regular progress.

Should a child be absent, what he has missed is in the outline. It can be made up. Nothing, therefore, need be lost.

These outlines in all the schools give us a definite basis for measuring the work of each school. We know exactly where each school stands and what should be done to bring all schools to the standard. This makes the task an entirely possible one and one certain of ultimate accomplishment.

Another advantage is that with a definite, detailed, permanent program, such as this material gives, shifts in the teaching force are less serious. The new teacher can take up the work where it left off and proceed with less confusion and delay. For the younger and less experienced, of whom we are certain always to have some, such definite guides to standard effective work are an absolute necessity.

We propose that this material shall serve us and not that we shall become a slave to it. We propose to avoid the dangers of such rigid plans.

I have gone into this matter at length because I regard it the most important thing that has been done this year.

In my last report I suggested a commercial course in our High School. This has been instituted for the following reasons:

Commercial work is the only sort of education beyond the grades distinctly demanded in Westport. It does not meet the needs or the desires of most of the children in town to take this work in the third and fourth year of High School in Fall River or New Bedford. Sending to private business schools at the expense of the town is illegal. No means of giving this work out of town makes it equally available to the children of all parts of the town, and an advantage open to those who live at North Westport, the Factory, or the Head, should not be denied those who live at Acoaxet, the Point or Horseneck. Since the only way to give all the town the principal demand of the town is to have our Commercial Course, we have inaugurated it.

The course was started this year as a distinct thing from the regular High School course. We find that such work is entirely feasible in town and should be continued. I advocate that the course now be so placed in the course of study that it may be complete within the regular High School course.

Towards the close of the last year it became evident that the schools would be overcrowded in September. A circular was distributed explaining the proposed changes to afford relief. Time proved our estimate of enrollment to be too small, and our changes to be inadequate to care for all the scholars. In September, although grades seven and eight had been removed from North Westport the building was so overcrowded as to require an extra teacher. The Factory school was overcrowded in the primary room and the primary room at Central Village, even with one less grade, was so overcrowded that the Macomber Corner school had to be opened to care for twenty children. Brownell Corner, also after the removal of one grade, has again become overcrowded.

The plain fact is, the school population of Westport has outgrown our school accommodations and something must be done promptly to furnish more room. What this shall be rests with the town. I here recommend that we do now, or as soon as possible, what I am certain we must do eventually, build a new schoolhouse at, or near, the corner of Beulah and the New Bedford roads, and enlarge the building at Central Village. I also give, herewith, the facts upon which this recommendation is based.

In past years the number of pupils rapidly decreased after the fourth grade because after completing this grade any one fourteen years old could get a work-card. The law now requires the completion of the sixth grade and further amendment is contemplated requiring the completion of all eight grades. We are certain, therefore, within a year or so, to have an almost doubled enrollment and immediately an increase of nearly fifty percent. These figures, moreover, do not allow for any increase for the number of children in the town. We know, however, that this is increasing. Our population is a somewhat shifting one, but we must be prepared to care for the larger enrollments of the Fall and Spring which with any further increase we cannot do. That in the immediate future we shall have more pupils than room is as certain as day and night.

While this condition affects more or less the entire town, it does not do so in all parts equally. Two schools particularly affected are North Westport and Westport Factory. In neither of these is the overcrowding due to children in their immediate neighborhood. Most of the scholars live half way between these schools and are now riding on the cars in one direction or the other, about two miles. Should a school building be erected near Beulah corner over ninety pupils, now costing the town about $50.00 per week for transportation, could walk to school and relieve the situation for years to come in the northern half of the town.

The situation in the southern part of the town is as follows: The section is served by the Central Village building, the two-room building at the Point, and four one-room buildings. There are some unused one-room buildings. The Central Village building is over-crowded and relief lies between an addition and the use of one-room schools. The issue here depends upon the question of one-room schools.

Of the buildings not now in use not one would stand inspection. Unless radical and expensive alterations are made at a cost greater than would be needed to enlarge the building at Central Village, these cannot be used. The status of the present small schools is also doubtful. We know that in their present state, their time is limited and the end may readily be nearer than we know. We might, in fact, suddenly find ourselves with less than our present room for our present enrollment, let alone any place for any increases.

Another factor that applies directly here is the law passed at the last session of the legislature which calls for the examination by experts provided by the State, of every child in school, and requires that in every town in which there are ten or more children retarded to a certain degree a special class must be provided. Without doubt we are such a town. No other building except Central Village is thus accessible. If it is not places here, where the present High School transportation facilities can serve it, the class will call for another transportation system of its own reaching into every corner of the town. The place for this class is clearly at Central Village, but we have no room for it here. I do not see how we can escape enlarging the Central Village School.

The question will of course arise, whether or not there is some alternative to building at the present time. There, of course, is. We can run the schools on double shift, which, for a town such as ours is a radically different thing from what it would be in cities where everyone walks to school. Of course here as elsewhere there is not time in a day for two complete school days. The educational advantages of all involved would be curtailed. Here, as elsewhere, also, teachers cannot do two days' work in one. In places affected we would have to double our teaching force. The great difficulty for us, however, in this scheme is the necessity of doubling transportation. The trucks would have to make two round trips per day. This would make it an all-day job for the drivers. Assuming that we could get anyone to do this work, I ask the town to consider the expense.

The plea for the old building will, of course, arise. I think enough has been said above to answer this, but I will add to it by drawing attention to the present impossibility of securing teachers in adequate numbers for such schools. About 75,000 such schools are now closed in the country for lack of a teacher. To urge their opening is certainly to ignore facts.

I have been asked what would happen should the town do nothing. If the town fails to provide room so that children are deprived of their educational rights at least two things can occur. If any one complains to the State Board of Education the town can lose its share in the State Funds which, as a result of last year's legislation, would amount for Westport to about $4,000 per year. Under the law requiring adequate school facilities, appeal could be made to the courts and the town would then be forced to act.

It seems to me that building is cheaper than any other alternative. We may have the buildings and pay for them or we may pay as much or more and not have the buildings. We pay anyway. The only choice is between paying for something or paying for nothing at the same price.

We have been distinctly fortunate in regard to teachers this year. We were able to fill all vacancies in the Fall and have had but one resignation to date. Those acquainted with the facts may consider this sufficient misfortune for one year, but our delay in filling the place was comparatively brief. No one not in contact with the problem can realize the serious shortage of teachers. When vacancies occur we may safely expect the following to occur: there will be a long delay before anyone can be found. The qualifications of the new teacher will not equal those of the old one. The new teacher can be secured only at an advance over what was paid the old teacher. The teachers who have served the town acceptably for years can not be held to a salary basis less than that paid newcomers with less or no previous experience, hence there will be a general revision upward of salaries.

Where this matter will end no one knows. We can only do our best and hope for the best. This applies also to supplies. Prices are high and rising and delivery at any price is doubtful. Material ordered last August has not come, and I have no certainty that it ever will.

Until this year there has been no specific law dealing with school transportation. At present we must transport under penalty, all living two miles from school.

Since some citizens seem to think that Westport is alone in the increased cost of transportation. I will give the situation for the State, as a whole. In the last thirty years the school population has doubled, total school expenses have increased five times, and the cost of transportation has increased twenty-six times. The average cost per day is twenty cents to twenty-four cents per pupil. The auto truck proves a shade cheaper than horses; 331 towns are now transporting. Forty-six fix no limits and of the remainder thirty-five per cent fix a limit of one mile, forty-three per cent place the mark at one and one-half miles, and the rest use the required two miles. Many towns give special consideration to small children and transport additional pupils if weather or traveling conditions are bad. Although transportation does not come directly within my province, it affects me indirectly because the things that I am responsible for can not succeed without the support of the public. This is not forthcoming when transportation conditions are unsatisfactory. Westport has no problem more important than transportation and it can not be settled too soon.

I have one specific suggestion to make to the citizens of the town. While in a round about way I hear more or less criticism, almost never is anything of this sort said directly to the people who alone can do anything and who should be told. School business is public business. Public business is everyone's business, not nobody's business. The person who omits speaking when and where he should is neglecting his own business, not minding his own business, as he often claims. The superintendent and the school committee can, of course, be depended on to know something of what is going on in school but we can not know everything if we are told nothing and we can not act upon a situation before we are aware of it. We are glad to hear criticism and suggestions at any time and we feel it is our right to hear them before, and not after, every one else in town.

In closing I wish to state that the teachers are doing good work and the pupils are getting returns upon their time and the town's money. I wish to thank all for their consideration and support. I commend particularly to your attention the report of the High School Principal and the School Physician.

Respectfully submitted,

EDWARD L. HILL,

Superintendent of Schools.

The Business Department, under Miss Grace Gold's supervision, has proven very satisfactory. We feel that we are offering as good a course as the city business colleges are giving. The pupils appreciate the fact that we are trying to give them something practical which they can use, even though they choose afterwards to pursue some other vocation. Another year we shall probably open up certain branches of the course to pupils of the first and second year, so that they will be even better prepared for advanced work in the third year.

Miss Elise Brecker, the assistant for a half year, did excellent work in her department. Her place has recently been filled by Miss Wonson, of Fall River, a graduate of Jackson College, '18.

There have been a few additions to our school library, including several books on agriculture, a set of International Encyclopedias, a set of Dickens' works, and supplementary works in business, history and science. Owing to the kindness of the school committee, superintendent and local Grange we now have available several good magazines, such as the Atlantic Monthly, Pathfinder, Youths' Companion, Outlook, New England Homestead, Literary Digest, and Current Events. These are valuable for supplementary reading, as well as for the fact that they create a taste for the best kind of reading.

A course in European history has been introduced in the second year. Such a study at this time is of great interest as a background to an understanding of the World War and conditions leading up to it.

Our object this year has been to make the course so interesting and attractive that we might hold a large number of pupils for a much longer period than many of them would naturally stay. With this object in view, the teachers have endeavored to gain the co-operation and interest of the parents, realizing that the home can exert a much larger influence over young life than the school. We have held one social gathering, to which all the parents were invited. Out of a possible number of fifty parents, we met only about twenty. I am sure those who came have a deeper interest in this school than they had before and the work of their children has, in several instances, shown a marked improvement.

We are proud of the school and are anxious to have you feel the same way. Education is an invaluable asset to every young man or woman and there is no reason why Westport should not stand in the front ranks, with men and women educated in your schools taking the first places in the affairs of state and nation.

We wish to express our appreciation to the school committee and superintendent for the way in which they have taken our suggestions and helped us with our plans.

Respectfully submitted,

MILDRED B. JENKS.

School Physician's Report.

To the School Committee of the Town of Westport:

I submit herewith my annual report. As in former years an examination of each pupil has been made and I am glad to report that the physical condition of the children is better than I have ever seen it. There has been less evidence of insufficient food and most of them appear well nourished. There are very few children with enlarged tonsils and adenoids. I find also that a great deal of attention is being paid to the care of the teeth, and that there are very few children with from ten to fifteen decayed teeth, as there has been in former years. There are also more whose teeth have been given dental care instead of being uselessly extracted. I hope that this is in part due to my frequent talks to them on the care of the teeth. It is certainly much better to have a tooth filled than to extract it and leave a space which will never be filled. There were almost no skin diseases or diseases of the heart and lungs. It is, of course, understood that a careful examination of the heart and lungs cannot be made without removing the clothes and this I believe, should not be done without the request of the parent.

Lice in some of the school children's heads have been much too prevalent. The committee has furnished a remedy to all who wished it and have developed a system of quarantine to protect those who are not so infested. In the interest of the health of the school children I must protest against the transportation system of the town. Some way should be provided whereby small children should not be forced to leave home at such early hours and return so late. They should not have to wait in the cold and rain for the truck nor stand outside of the school houses at night waiting. I also feel that the crowding of children into the trucks is a cause of many diseases which are contagious.

There have been no complaints of the heating and ventilation. The most pressing need is of a school nurse. Such a nurse would spend her time in the schools looking after the welfare of the scholars. She would be able to make a visit to each school once or twice a week. If a child were reported sick she could go to the home and perhaps suggest some simple thing which would relieve the condition and allow the pupil to return to school, or, if necessary, advise the parents to call a physician. She could instruct the teachers and pupils in hygiene as well as the parents with whom she came in contact. These are only a few of the ways in which a school nurse would be of value to the schools and the community. There is a bill before the legislature which requires each town and city to employ one or more school nurses in addition to the school physician, but I believe that the school nurse is much more valuable than the school physician because she is paid enough to give her entire time and attention to her work.
